Session 1

Community-led monitoring in a changing world

What is community-led monitoring?

Community-led monitoring (CLM) is an evidence-informed accountability mechanism that can support HIV programme managers and service providers to identify and address local challenges in accessibility, acceptability, affordability and quality of prevention and treatment commodities, services and programmes.

Why is CLM so important right now?

CLM involves local, community-led organizations of people living with HIV, networks of key populations and other community entities that systematically:

- Monitor and report on how services, programmes and policies are implemented and experienced at the level of communities and recipients of care
  - Compile and analyse the data collected to identify opportunities for improvement
  - Review evidence with service providers, programme managers and policy makers to jointly develop and implement solutions to identified problems
- Social accountability work that links experience, evidence and advocacy is crucial to the HIV response now and as it evolves toward 2030—and beyond.

We have a lot to celebrate!

» CLM is valued by stakeholders in the HIV response, and a well-resourced intervention that is scaled to improve the quality of health services

We also have a lot to do to make sure CLM thrives in a changing world!

» Lessons, challenges and strengths from CLM programmes to date must be shared and analyzed to support continuation and strengthening as the HIV response evolves.

That's our mission for today...

Here's how:

Objectives of this CLM pre-conference

1. To increase understanding and awareness of CLM impacts and importance in the global HIV response;
2. To surface insights, ideas and priorities that will safeguard and strengthen CLM for the future - with a particular focus on areas of importance to CLM implementers - including roles and relationships with government, situating CLM in a larger HIV environment - including non-CLM advocacy and sustainability agendas, increasing engagement around CLM with leaders in adjacent fields
3. To clarify approaches that will strengthen and sustain CLM in particular and social accountability more broadly for HIV and adjacent fields.
